A PERSIAN PRINCE.

The Head of a Religious Sect, He Lives in Style at Bombay.

A Persian prince lives in Bombay of whom very little is heard, though he is a power in the oriental world. He wields more authority than many oriental potentates. He is at the head of the Maulai sect of Mohammedans who are widely scattered over northern India and the regions north and east of India. The Maulais regard this refugee Persian prince as their spiritual head, or pope. Col. Tanner, who has described the inhabitants of the Himalayas recently says that were this prince to return to Persia he would speedily lose his head, though he exercises absolute spiritual authority over a vast number of followers in the upper Oxus states in Kashmir, in Burmah, and even in China. The constituted rulers of these countries do not influence those of their people who are members of this religious sect so powerfully as does this far-away prince.

The lowliest Maulai who wanders over the icy plateau of the Pamir feels it his duty to subscribe from his scanty means every year toward a tribute to his spiritual lord. Across the snowy passes which lie between central Asia and India this tribute is carried and delivered, regardless of the difficulties which for many stages beset the embassies on their journey.

"The prince, who, by the way, is addicted to horse racing, and is one of the most liberal patrons of the Indian turf, is one of the descendants of the original saints so commonly regarded in olden times by the Persians as persons of the greatest sanctity. He lives in the greatest luxury. His very large income, wholly derived from the annual contributions of the faithful, enables him to occupy a fine palace. He has a large retinue of servants, a stable of fine horses, and all the outward trappings of a very important and wealthy personage." He is far more fortunate than the princes of the upper Oxus states, who, within a few years, have been passing under the rapacious rule of the tyrant of Afghanistan. Under one pretext or another the leading and most influential of the upper Oxus princes have been made way with by the ameer, and the rest are apparently destined to meet the same fate at the hands of the Afghan ally of Great Britain, whose hands are steeped in the blood of every man of note in his dominions whom he considers to be inimical to his rule.

GRINDING OUT MONEY.

A Little Machine Which Is Giving Washington Officials Lots of Fun.

The treasury officials are having a lot of fun nowadays with a little machine which is so arranged that it has the appearance of grinding out paper money by simply turning a crank. By an ingenious arrangement, which apparently consists of two steel rollers, it receives on one side of the rollers a slip of brown paper and rolls out at the other side a printed and in every way complete treasury note. The secret of it is that these notes are put in the machine and the rolling is begun, and the brown paper is carefully stowed away inside one of the rollers, while the treasury notes are ground out from their secret reservoir, where they have been previously stored. The deception, however, is so complete that to the average individual it looks as though the slip of paper rolled in on one end actually came out a brand new treasury note on the other side.

"I never saw a man so thoroughly fooled and excited," said a treasury official, as he exhibited the little machine on his desk, "as was one of our secret service men the other day. His eyes fairly popped out when he saw it. 'Great Heavens!' he said, 'this is the most dangerous thing that I ever saw. Why, it ought to be suppressed at once. There is no telling what quantities of money may be printed with it, and the imitation is absolutely perfect. Why, it even changes the number.' He took up bill after bill that it had ground out before his eyes. The other officials who were in the secret were holding their sides and ready to explode with laughter, as he went on examining the notes as they were ground out one after another, and it was not until he visited New York some days afterwards and brought the matter to the attention of men there that he was undeceived." The department is in receipt of numerous letters calling attention to this machine, carefully discussing the great danger in permitting the existence of a machine which so easily produces such exact representations of treasury notes.

Acute Hearing of Horses.

It is well known that horses can hear deep sounds which men cannot. For days previous to the earthquake in the Riviera the horses there showed every symptom of abject fear, which continued without any change of character till the fury of the convulsion broke forth. But not till a few seconds before the earth began to quake did human beings hear any sounds, while it is extremely probable that the horses heard the subterranean noises for two or three days previously.

The "Razzle Dazzle."

A "razzle dazzle" was one of the nuisances specified in the complaint against a place of amusement in the old Cross-Bones burial yard near London. The "razzle dazzle" was a contrivance intended to make people experience the motion of the waves of the sea, and the screams of the razzle dazzlers were heard for blocks.

A CENSUS OF DEVILS.

Authority Saith That They Are Numerous and of Unpleasant Appearance.

Of devils, Guilielmus Parisiensis has found, on an exact computation, that there are 44,435,556, but it has been said that they vastly exceed that number. Their internal characteristics have been minutely described. Their bodies are not terrestial, but, according to the church scholastics, something analogous.

John Wier, a physician of Cleves, convinced that this world is peopled by crowds of devils, wrote in 1576 a book of some thousand folio pages which is one of our chief sources of information on the subject. He makes, says the Nineteenth Century, seventy-two princes of devils, with 7,405,926 subjects. He may have owed this information to his master, Cornelius Agrippa. Collin de Plancy, in his "Dictionnaire Infernal," has given pictorial illustrations to supplement Wier.

The figure of a devil, generally, is that of a goat with two horns in front and two behind; but he also appears as a frog, a fly, a donkey and a spider. Blake saw him as a swimming spider. He assumes, in short, every shape except that of a dove and of a lamb. By Europeans he is commonly painted black. The Africans prefer a white devil.

That old serpent, Satan, the supreme prince of this world, of the powers of the air, and of darkness, Lucifer, the devil par excellence, is described as a great red dragon with seven crowned heads, ten horns and a huge tail. He has two deputies, one of the sea, having three crowns more than his master, displayed with the body of a leopard, the feet of a bear, and the tail of a lion; the other of the earth, known as the beast, with two horns only.

HIRAM AND THE BULL.

It Was an Undecided Question Which Was the Greater Coward.

Ten years ago the hunter, ambitious to secure the buffalo, could still go to a region where he could kill hundreds of them. Then there was a western "town" into which the buffalo often came down at night, says Forest and Stream, and it was not unusual for the residents when they arose in the morning to see a bunch within rifle range of the houses. Among the dwellers in this town was one who, although he had lived on the frontier since the early sixties, had never killed a buffalo. One morning when Hiram looked out of his door he saw, not far away, a great buffalo bull rubbing his ragged sides against the bole of an old cottonwood tree. Here was a chance such as had never before presented itself. "Such an opportunity might not occur again," and he was filled with a great longing to kill this bull.

Seizing a gun, he crept out, and, stealing through the sage brush and among the trees, was soon quite near the bull. Its immense size—for he had never before been close to a buffalo—somewhat startled the hunter, but he had gone too far to retreat now. Feeling a little nervous, he leveled his gun, and fired. At the report the bull jumped a little and then glared slowly about with an air of the utmost ferocity, as if eager to pulverize whoever had fired the shot. This slow, searching gaze and the brute's fierce aspect were too much for Hi's nerves. They gave way, and dropping his gun he ran nimbly to the nearest tree and climbed into it with the activity of a boy. The bull in the meantime was thundering off in the opposite direction, while some of Hiram's companions, who had been looking on, were shouting with laughter.

SOME WONDERFUL RIVERS.

The Subterranean Rivers Not the Only Ones of Special Interest.

The subterranean rivers of the world, of which the one in the Mammoth cave of Kentucky is usually reckoned as the most unique, are generally set down in lists of natural curiosities as being the greatest wonders in the line of waterways; but such lists, however, are not always reliable.

To the mind of "ye curious man," there are other rivers which have a sufficient element of the marvelous to admit them into categories of the wonderful. Algeria, Spain and India, for instances, each has rivers within its borders which are composed, not of water, but of ink.

That in Algeria is water until after the union of two of its principal tributaries, one of which flows through a country strongly impregnated with iron, the other comes from a peat bog. The chemical action of the iron on the gallic acid from the peat makes a beautiful writing fluid.

The Webbe Shebevli, an African river, is one of the wonders of the dark continent. Although it is a large, rapid-flowing river, almost as large as our own Missouri, and flows for hundreds of miles through a fertile country, it never reaches the sea.

About thirty miles before its waters get to the point where they should mingle with those of the Indian ocean the whole stream sinks out of sight into the sands of a desert.

Easily Explained.

"How do you understand the phrase an 'impressionist picture'?" asked the country cousin of a city cynic as they stood in the art gallery. "Why, an 'impressionist picture' is one that leaves on your mind the impression that it is the picture of a cow, and the impression lingers until you look at the catalogue and read that it is a picture of a water-spaniel."

JOPPA TO JERUSALEM.

A New Railroad That Will Be of Service to Pilgrims.

The first railway in Jerusalem will, we are told, be opened in the spring of the coming year. It is a short line, running only from Joppa, the nearest port on the Mediterranean, and intended to accommodate the growing passenger and other traffic between that place and the holy city.

The work of construction is being carried out by a French company, who began laying down the line in April, 1890. It is fully expected that the speculation will be a paying one. The company anticipates, at all events, making large profits, after paying the shareholders a guaranteed interest of five per cent.

It is stated that over forty thousand persons land at Joppa every year, in order to make a pilgrimage to Jerusalem and other spots celebrated in sacred history, says the London Standard. The number of steamers and other vessels putting into the port of Joppa is now upward of eight hundred a year, the destination of most of the passengers and merchandise they convey being the capital of Palestine. In evidence of the recent rapid growth of the traffic it may be mentioned that Joppa has trebled its population within the past thirty years.

Tourists will be able to take a return ticket from the port in question and Jerusalem for twenty francs, and, what is more, they will be able to do the journey in a far shorter time with infinitely greater safety than hitherto. The rush of tourists from all parts of the civilized world to Jerusalem will, if the expectations of the promoters are fulfilled, be something phenomenal in the immediate future.

THE WIDE WORLD OVER.

Things Seen Abroad Which Make True Americans Feel Proud.

The American consuls abroad, except those located in the large commercial ports, are for the most part of limited advantage to the American people en masse. They do make reports to the home government, but these generally are of interest only to a few Americans trading with the port at which the consul is situated. Occasionally, however, one of these public servants develops a knack of using his eyes, and the results are apt to be gratifying to one's pride and patriotism. Consul Bedloe, of Amoy, in the course of his Oriental travels, mentions several facts that quicken the pulse of a true American.

In Japan the Pullman car conveys the brown-eyed people of the mikado to every part of the empire.

At Hong Kong a steamer called America was conveying a Baldwin locomotive to Australia.

At Sumatra he says he saw a Georgia Yankee working a Pennsylvania oil derrick.

Shanghai uses Edison's telephone, and long-distance telephones connect the Sphinx and the Pyramids with the barrooms of the Cairo hotels. American beef and mutton dominate the market.

In the interior of Formosa a savage chief sports a Waterbury watch and eats ashcake made from California flour.

In Cairo he found a native story-teller passing his shell about for contributions after reciting one of Longfellow's "Tales of a Wayside Inn."

THE THEATERPHONE.

One of Bellamy's Dreams on a Fair Way to Be Realized.

The latest achievement of science—the theaterphone—was lately tested in the "Sorcerer Room" of the Savoy hotel, London. This high development of the telephone, says the Albany Evening Journal, is able to supply at private houses the music of any opera or the actual dialogue, as simultaneously spoken, of any comedy, farce or melodrama playing on the London stage.

For a small sum a party of eight can stay at home and enjoy the music of "Lohengrin" at the same time that it is being heard at the Covent Garden theater. All the large hotels propose to place several of these phones in the public rooms, where, by dropping twenty-five cents in the slot, it will be possible to enjoy ten minutes of an opera or play.

In Paris, where the Theaterphone Company has already one thousand subscribers, some residing as far as fifteen miles from the center of the city, they are turning on theatrical and musical performances so cheaply that people can sit down and enjoy them in a room at something like two dollars and a half a night for eight persons. Special occasions, however, are charged extra.

England's Frozen Meat Imports.

The importation of frozen meat into England is increasing year by year. From 15 to [illegible] per cent. of all the mutton consumed in the British Isles comes from New Zealand and the River Plate, to say nothing of other sources of supply. Last year New Zealand sent nearly 3,000,000 and the Plate more than 1,000,000 carcasses. Australia is coming to the front. In three years its exports of carcasses have risen from 90,000 to 340,000, and there is no doubt that the business in a very few years will assume vast proportions. Sheep raising has also been begun in the Falkland islands which exported 30,000 carcasses last year as a beginning. The whole of this trade has sprung up in less than ten years. What it may be ten years hence can scarcely be guessed.

DUELING IN ITALY.

Criminal Proceedings Against Eleven Deputies in Rome.

Italian deputies have constituted the majority of each of the three peace congresses held in recent years in Rome, and they have written and published a whole literature of pamphlets, entitled: "Down with Weapons," "The Universal Peace," "War Abolished," etc. At the same time they have remained the most pugnacious lot of parliamentary representatives in the world. Hardly a session of parliament passes without a dozen or more duels among the members coming to general notice, and probably as many more are fought and finished in secrecy.

At present, says the New York Sun, criminal proceedings have been begun against eleven deputies for duels fought by them last summer. Deputy Roux must answer for his participation in two meetings. The other ten are charged with one duel each. In four meetings blood flowed, although nobody was injured mortally. The other duels were concluded without pain or peril to anybody.

Statistics for ten years in Italy show that the deputies do not misrepresent their country by their readiness to settle disputes with weapons. Between 1880 and 1890 2,759 duels were fought. Of these 2,459 were fought with sabers, 179 with pistols and 90 with rapiers. Fifty duels resulted in death, 1,000 in severe wounds, 1,400 in slight wounds. In 947 cases newspaper articles and in 730 cases oral disputes gave cause for meetings. In 380 meetings there was a woman in the case; in 179, a blow was struck; in 29, differences as to religion were to be settled; in 19, gambling caused the quarrel.

Since the beginning of 1800, when dueling was made punishable with imprisonment for from three days to three months, the number of meetings has decreased. In 1890 but 177 duels were fought and in 1891 only 138. The fact that eleven deputies are being prosecuted for violating the law shows that dueling is a national pastime which Italian gentlemen will not abandon without a struggle. Most of them still stand fast in the spirit of the Neapolitan nobleman who, after having fought thirty duels to defend his opinion that Dante was a greater poet than Shakespeare, confessed on his deathbed that he had never read the works of either.

FOX AGAINST BULL.

The Bull Won, But He Had to Smart for His Victory.

Farmer Burbank, of Lenox township, Susquehanna county, saw a winded fox trotting toward the barn while he was feeding his cattle the other day. In a moment the fox crept under the barnyard fence, panted as though he had been racing for several hours, and lay down on a mass of straw close to the barn. Mr. Burbank's ugly Durham bull was nosing in the straw, and he began to paw and bellow the moment he caught a glimpse of the tired fox. Reynard paid no attention to the noisy bull at first, but as the bull came closer, bellowed louder, and pawed up the straw until it flew all over him, the fox began to watch him. Suddenly the bull lowered his horns and dived at the fox, and the fox sprang up and snapped viciously at the bull's nose. He didn't catch it, and the bull immediately made another dash at the fox. This time, says the New York Sun, the fox settled his teeth in the bull's snout with the ferocity of a panther. Instantly the bull threw his head up with terrific force, and the fox lost his hold on the bull's nose and landed on the roof of the barn, twenty-three feet from the ground.

Then the angry bull looked all around for the fox, bellowing, snorting, and pawing as before, and the fox climbed to the peak of the barn and sat there for a minute or so. The eaves on the opposite side of the barn were only a few feet from the ground, and presently the fox jumped down, ran around to the yard and lay down on the straw again. Once more the bull dashed at him, and the fox bit his nose till the blood came. The pain made the bull more furious, and he rushed at the fox for the fourth time. Reynard snapped at his snout again, but failed to reach it, and the mad bull forced him against the barn and drove his horns clear through the plucky fox's body. Then the bull ran around the yard with the fox on his horns, and Mr. Burbank clubbed the bull into the stable, where he pulled the fox loose. The fox was still kicking, but he soon died, and the bull had a sore nose for more than a week.

Diamond Washing.

The exhibit of diamonds from Cape Colony will be one of the most interesting features of the mines and mining exhibit. Chief Skiff has been informed that the De Beers Diamond Company will show every stage of the production of diamonds, from the pulverizing of blue earth for washing the finished and polished stones. The exhibit will include one hundred tons of pulverized blue earth for washing; fifty tons of unpulverized blue earth for a trophy to be built of the material itself; a complete washing machine to be operated by natives; all the special and unused diamondiferous products in the possession of the De Beers Diamond Company; about ten thousand carats of uncut stones; a large quantity of cut and polished stones and a collection of crocidolite. The display will require a safety deposit vault and special storage for one hundred and fifty tons of raw material.

SUN AND EARTH.

Connection Between Sun Spots and the Aurora Borealis.

Observers of the sun's face have for centuries noticed at times dark spots on it, says John K. Rees, in Harper's Young People. Now we know from the accumulated observations that the extent and number of these spots vary. Sometimes we can see very few, or even none at all, and sometimes we can see a great many, some of which are visible to the naked eye when protected by colored or smoked glass. Such a spotted region is now (February 18) passing out of sight on the southwestern limb of the sun; but a second group of spots is finely visible on the northern hemisphere, stretching in a long line from the eastern edge to the center of the sun. But what has the sun to do with the aurora? Simply this: It has been shown that when we have the greatest number of sun spots, then we have the most frequent and most gorgeous displays of the aurora. When there is a great storm on the sun producing spots, then we feel at once on our little earth a disturbance of electrical conditions. The display of the aurora on February 13 is regarded as an accompaniment of the solar disturbances which have produced the tremendous spotted regions mentioned.

The average time from when the spotted area on the sun is greatest to the next maximum is a little over eleven years. The last spot maximum occurred in 1883-4, a year or two behind the average time, and we seem now to be approaching a maximum in 1892-3. We may therefore fairly conclude that during this year we shall be favored with numerous and brilliant auroræ.

Mirrors Made of Wood.

In Germany wood with a mirror polish is coming into use as a substitute for metal in the finishing of ornamental work. In order to make the wood susceptible to a polish of this order it must first be submitted to a bath of caustic alkali for two days, the bath being kept at a temperature of one hundred and seventy-five Fahrenheit all the while. Next it is soaked in a solution of hydrosulphate of calcium for from twenty-four to thirty-nine hours. The third dip is into a bath of concentrated solution of sulphur. The final dip is into a solution of acetate of lead at a temperature of one hundred degrees. After being thoroughly dried the wood is ready to have the metallic surface imparted to it, which is done by giving it a rubbing with finely powdered lead, tin or zinc. Wood treated in the above manner, it is said, will take a polish almost equal to that so often imparted to steel, silver or nickel.

FIREFLIES FROM CUBA.

Experimenting with the Light They Give, the Cheapest in the World.

Secretary Langley, of the Smithsonian institution, has been experimenting for some time past with fireflies from Cuba. He says that the light they give is the "cheapest" in the world produced, that is to say, with the least heat and the smallest expenditure of energy; and he believes that a successful imitation of it would prove a most profitable substitute for gas and electricity. The insects are beetles two inches long and belong to the family of "snapping bugs," so called because when one of them is laid on its back it snaps itself into the air with a clicking sound.

The secret of the light this firefly gives is as yet undiscovered, says the Washington Star. Apparently it is connected in some way with the mysterious phenomena of life, and chemists and physicists have sought in vain to explain its origin. On each side of the animal's thorax is a luminous membranous spot, and these flash at intervals, so that the Cubans put a dozen of the insects in a cage together, and so obtain a continuous illumination bright enough to read by. This light is accompanied by no preceptible heat, and is seemingly produced with almost no expenditure of energy. How great an improvement it represents upon all known artificial lights can be imagined when it is stated that in candlelight, lamplight, or gaslight the waste is more than ninety-nine per cent. In other words, if they could be so obtained as not to throw anything away, they would give nearly one hundred times the illumination which they do afford.

HE WAS A GENTLEMAN.

"Old Hickory" Turned His Back When Davy Crockett Drank.

Davy Crockett used to say that Gen. Jackson was the politest man he had ever met. It was while Jackson was president that Crockett paid his respects at the white house, says the Cincinnati Times-Star. "The president was glad to see me and we talked a long time," said Crockett, "and finally the general asked me if I wouldn't like to have a drink, saying that he had a fine brand that was the 'rale old stuff,' and of course I could not refuse the president. So he went and brought it out, and he didn't tell me to pour out one.

"He didn't bring out any glass at all; but in genuine, good, old true Texas style he handed me the demijohn and then turned his back, and I swung it upon my arm and began to pull at it. Such liquor I had never tasted, and I couldn't let go for a long time, but the president never turned around until I said 'Bob,' and I tell you that is what I call real, true, genuine politeness, and that is why I say that old Gen. Jackson was the politest man I ever knew."

The McKinley law is developing our foreign trade as well as our domestic industries. For the three months ending April 30, 1891, our exports of corn, wheat and wheat flour to Germany were $304,278

Dead Sea Fruits.

They slay multitudes when they are the product of neglect of incipient disease. A "slight" cold, a fit of indigestion, biliousness or constipation each or any of these "minor ailments" advance in many cases with "league-destroying strides." Give them a swift, early defeat with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and avert the danger. Abernethy administered an alarming rebuke to the man who informed him that he had "only a cold!" "Only a cold," repeated the doctor. "What would ye have—the plague!" Rheumatism and la grippe are easily extinguishable at the start. Why then allow them to get up a full head of steam? Put on the brakes with the Bitters. The genial warmth which this superb medicine diffuses through the system, the impetus it gives to the circulation of the blood, its soothing and strengthening effect upon the nervous, specially recommend it to the enfeebled and sick. 'Tis the great specific for malaria.

FOR CONGRESS.

The Republican State Convention will meet at Sacramento on the 26th, to nominate Presidential Electors, and most of the Congressional District Conventions will select candidates for Congress. In this, the Second, District, which includes Alpine, Inyo and Mono, there is a unanimity among the papers of the District in favor of John F. Davis, of Calaveras county, the "silver tongued orator" of California. Mr. Davis is a Native Son, having been born in California, and is a graduate of Harvard and of the Hastings Law College, and was admitted to practice in our Supreme Court about eight years ago. He is a mine owner, a member of the Miners' Association, and just the man the mountain mining counties want to represent them in Congress. Mr. Davis made the canvass two years ago with the late George G. Blanchard, who ran in a strong Democratic District, but was beaten by Camminetti by only 150, and Mr. Blanchard felt himself under great obligations to Mr. Davis for the great assistance rendered him. Mono is for Mr. Davis, and her delegates will give him their support.

ANOTHER "BREAK."

De Young, the aspirant for United States Senator, is in the soup again. A story has been published that Blaine resigned on account of Foster, of the State Department, having "crossed swords with him" during the Canadian Conference, Foster having informed the Canadian Commissioners that the statement made to them by Blaine would not be indorsed by Harrison, which incensed Blaine and caused him to resign in a huff. The story is pronounced a campaign lie, and the Philadelphia Press says that De Young "was so unwise as to accept the story as true and give it the apparent indorsement of his name." Foster has made an explicit denial of the story, in which the Canadian officials fully corroborate him. It would be a good thing for the Republican party if De Young could be sent to the Society Islands till after the election. It is going to be an up-hill fight with De Young handicapping the Republican party in this State.

George Cassidy, editor of the Eureka Sentinel, and the Democratic candidate for Congress from Nevada, died suddenly at Reno, Nev., on Saturday last of apoplexy. He made a speech in the Silver Convention then in session at Reno and immediately retired to his room at the hotel, laid down and sent for a physician. He died at 5 o'clock that afternoon. His death is greatly regretted throughout the State, as he was very popular with all parties. He was twice sent to Congress by large majorities. He was a native of Kentucky and aged 55. Mr. Cassidy was one of the ablest Democrats in Nevada, and in a party sense he will be a great loss to the Democracy.

The Sacramento Bee says of revivalist Mills: "Mr. Mills came here a Christian, and leaves a gentleman. He did not burst forth upon our startled gaze a promiscuous blackguard and sacrilegious buffoon, nor depart a contemptible and convicted liar.—He did not proceed at once to abuse the people of Sacramento, to sneer at the chastity of our women, and to shriek out that our little girls who attend school are beer guzzlers and inebriates. He did not, before he had been here three hours, denounce the city as the vilest hell-hole he had ever seen, and declare that Sodom and Gomorrah were capitals of cleanliness and chastity in comparison. In fine, he did not commence to lie and blackguard the moment he opened his mouth, but he impressed all his hearers with an idea somewhat new to them—that a modern revivalist can be an earnest and a sincere gentleman, and that his Christianity loses no vigor because it is clean, decent and respectable."

is not room enough to even mention briefly the scores of resorts throughout California.

In MOUNTAINS we have between Shasta on the north and San Jacinto on the south the myriad peaks of the Sierras and the Coast Range.

In LAKES there are scores, from the small glacier cups to the great inland seas of Tahoe, Clear and Tulare.

In MINERAL SPRINGS we have hundreds that cure all sorts of ailments.

In SEASIDE RESORTS there are scattered along the coast at convenient intervals enough salt-bathing and recuperating establishments to accommodate all inland leisure seekers.

There is therefore no lack of variety, and no excuse for the dweller by the sea in not making a tour into the mountains, or the dweller in the inland valleys and mountains in not seeking a journey to the sea.

The sum total of these remarks is that you reader need a change; you can better afford to take one than not. Mark that. You can take your choice of localities and you may be breaking some of the commandments if you do not attend to this matter.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Personal.

Henry Mills, a mining expert, of San Francisco, arrived on Gelatt's stage on Saturday last, to examine the Dunderburg mine, near this place, for an English company.

Mrs. Wat. Morgan came over from Bodie on Saturday last and has been visiting her legion of Bridgeport friends.

Mrs. Geo. Kinney and children, and Miss Laura Summers, arrived from Mono Lake on Monday.

Judge Curran, of Sweetwater, was in town on Monday.

Mr. Meissner, of Mason Valley, was in town on Wednesday.

Stanley Morgan, of Bodie, has been visiting his young friends here this week.

James Sturgeon was over from Mono Lake on Wednesday attending to land business.

P. E. Van Loan was over from Bodie the first of the week, returning home on Wednesday.

Mrs. Wat Morgan returned to her Bodie home on Wednesday much sooner than her friends here desired.

Dan. Simpson came in from Smith Valley on Wednesday.

H. Warner and James Hopkins were over from Mono Lake on Wednesday on land business.

Mrs. Sam. Fales and Mrs. Minnie Hampton were down from Hot Springs Thursday.

W. Radley and Jo. Hunt were up from Antelope this week.

J. Summers, brother of the late Dr. Summers, arrived here on Sunday.

Miss Cornelia Richards, Superintendent of Schools, will teach the Antelope School next term.

Nat. Boyd was over from Bodie on Wednesday.

Geo. Kinney is in town, from the Lake.

THE FOURTH.

The Fourth will be creditably celebrated here. The Hall has been neatly decorated: R. M. Folger will be President of the Day, Judge Eddy will orate, Mrs. M. J. Cody will read the Declaration; Miss Nellie Hawks will recite "Drakes Address to the American Flag, and Miss Ella Hughes will recite "E Pluribus Unum" The Choir will sing National songs, and the Bridgeport Brass Band will give us lots of good music. In the afternoon the young folks will have lots of games, sports, etc. The hotels will have good dinners, and in the evening, Heath, Hampton and Patterson will give the ball at Bryant's Hall. With all of the above why should not all be happy, at least once a year, over the prosperity and continued advancement of our country.

Pay the Bonds.—County Clerk Murphey has made out and forwarded to State Board of Examiners the bill of Mono county for the care of the indigent poor, the amount being $5,699 10. The Board will probably order the bill paid at their next meeting, which should be held next week After deducting the commission agreed upon for its collection, there will be quite a little sum to be paid into the Treasury, and it may be considered a clear gain to the county. The amount should be set aside for the purpose of taking up that amount of the bonds of the county now outstanding and drawing interest. Every bond taken up stops just so much interest, and the taking up of this amount of bonds will save the county $150 or $200 interest every year.—If we don't look out and retire these bonds one or a few at a time every year they will all become due at once and we will have to rustle to pay them.

Come Out.—Candidates are very backward in coming forward with their announcements. It will cost no more to announce yourselves now than it will a month or so later, and you should remember that the early bird catches the worm. Many a man has lost his election by not letting his friends know in time he was a candidate.—Many have been talked of as being candidates, but no one knows that they are in the field. Come out, gentlemen, and let your aspirations be known.

Narrow Escape.—On Tuesday, while C. E. Wederis and wife were coming to town from their sheep camp, the hail storm frightened their horses, and Mrs. Wederis was thrown to the ground by her saddle turning, but fortunately she escaped injury. The hail stones were very large, enough to scare the most sedate horse, and a serious time was anticipated, but they got through to town with no serious mishap, but one of their horses ran away.

Tri-Weekly Trips.—Gelatt's Bridgeport Carson stage is now making tri-weekly trips, leaving Bridgeport on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings, returning on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. This will be a great convenience to the traveling public, as it is a cheap and pleasant route to and from Carson, and travelers are fast finding it out.

Cupid's Ways.—It is said that Cupid is very busy around Bridgeport, Bodie and Lundy, and that County Clerk Murphey will be kept busy issuing marriage licenses this month.

Look Out.—Look out for fire on the Fourth. Have water at hand in case of emergency.

THE GOODS ARE PURE

San Francisco Chronicle.

The fact that the Royal Baking Powder Company has succeeded far beyond any of its competitors is no doubt reason enough for some of them to say anything against the Royal Baking Powder that they can get newspapers to publish. We do not know whether that sort of thing has injured the Royal's business or not. We don't suppose it has, but of one thing we are sure, when the goods of any company have been on the market, as Royal Baking Powder has, for a whole generation, and been consumed by almost the entire population to a greater or less extent, with perfect satisfaction to all, and without having injured the health of a single person, then it will take more than spite or jealousy to injure its business. The baking powders made by this Company have been tested a thousand times by the most eminent chemists and always pronounced pure and wholesome.—This, added to the experience of the millions who have used them, will stamp as absurd the attacks of other manufacturers who are prompted by jealousy of their great success to publish false statements about the Royal Company's goods.

Religious.—Rev. Mr. Bradley will hold services at the School House at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. Rev. Wilson will be present and assist in organizing a Sunday School.

All Right.—Janitor Crowell had the Court House flag pole taken down on Wednesday and a new truck put on, and before night had it up again and Old Glory flying to the breeze.

Will Meet.—The Board of Supervisors will meet in regular session on next Tuesday.

To-Night.—Rev. Wilson will preach this evening in the School House.

Ice Cream at Bryant's Hall on the Fourth, afternoon and evening.

The Inyo Register says that the new road machine recently purchased by the Supervisors, is doing fine work on the roads.—Why not try one of them in this county?

Linen and Pearl Buttons.

One of the notable features of the National Republican gathering at Minneapolis was the presence of a club from Eau Claire, Wis., 250 strong, clothed in long linen coats and high hats covered with linen. Pearl buttons an inch in diameter in double rows were displayed on the front of the coats.—They were the representatives of two big factories that have been built up in Wisconsin under the McKinley law. It was a practical demonstration that these commodities—linen and pearl buttons—can be manufactured in this country under a protective tariff.

HUNTING THE MOOSE.

An Animal That Is Very Snakes and Hard to Capture.

The only real moose-hunters are half-breeds or full-blooded Indians. Without the aid of these native sportsmen the white man has but little chance of capturing antlers for hall or dining-room. When the snow is deep, and the white hunter is provided with snow-shoes and a reasonable amount of wood-craft, he may achieve some success. The moose, says Frank Leslie's Weekly, is nocturnal and feeds at night upon the tops of the gray and golden willow. During the day he sleeps, but always with [illegible] or, more literally, with [illegible] ready to catch and transmit the slightest sound to the brain in the great awkward head. The wise hunter, who understands the habits of the game, does not run headlong on the trail when he strikes it in the snow, because the moose has thought of that and doubled on his track, and may be at the moment the trail is struck, quietly watching the snow-shoers from a thicket not more than twenty feet away. Hence the hunters with greater caution constantly make detours from the trail until the game is located. If the moose is only wounded when fired upon he is a dangerous foe, for he will dance on his hind legs like a dancing-master, and strike with his sharp forefeet like an expert fencer. He seldom uses his antlers unless wounded in one of his dancing legs, when he must needs use his head as an offensive weapon.

A few moose are still left in Maine, with now and then a straggler in northern New York, but they, like the buffalo, have had their day, and it will not be long before a few skins in the museums will furnish the only visible traces of this grand forest king.

FEMININE VANITY.

A Photographer's Ingenious Way of Catering to It.

A London photographer has conceived an idea which has already made him fame, and deserves to make his fortune. He noticed, says the Chicago Times, that when he had a lady sitter with lovely, graceful feet she was always at least willing to let them appear in the picture, but that when the boots were over size she took care to keep them under the edges of her gown. So this man of genius caused to be constructed a pair of artificial feet of dainty proportions, and had them dressed in the newest and most approved bottines. These he exposed in his atelier and explained to visitors. After awhile he delicately suggested to a lady whose feet were uncompromising that she permit these to enter into the picture, and, deftly hooking the false feet to the hem of her gown, made a charming full length photograph. His success has dated from that day. London women don't mind availing themselves of the artificial beauty any more than of powder or any other toilet aid. Apropos of successful photographs, there is a very simple way of preventing the depressed, disconsolate look that one's face is apt to assume in the forced repose of a sitting. It is to drink just a thimbleful of sherry in the dressing-room. It will put into your face the tiny touch of life and animation that adds so much to the beauty of a likeness, and which is so apt to degenerate into a grin when assumed to order.

HE CARRIED A KNIFE.

The Singular Contents of a Pickerel's Stomach.

On the last day of ice-pickerel fishing in this county this season Will Schlessler of this village caught a four-pounder in Killow's pond, near here, says a Honesdale (Pa.) correspondent of the New York Sun. The fisherman was not a little taken aback to discover an immense fish-hook in the pickerel's upper jaw and about ten feet of fish-line trailing from its mouth. This line was fastened to another big and rusty hook that was buried in the pickerel's throat. These things were sufficiently surprising, Schlessler thought, but when he dressed the pickerel he found that the fish had still greater surprises in store. The first one of these was an eight-inch catfish, with sharp horns an inch and a half long, in the pickerel's stomach, and not only in its stomach, but with the horns imbedded in the pickerel's flesh. Removing the catfish and proceeding further with dressing the pickerel, Schlessler found some hard substance in its stomach. This proved to be a two-bladed knife five inches in length with a buckhorn handle an inch thick. The appearance of the knife showed that it must have been inside the pickerel a long time, as the metal was coated thick with rust and the buckhorn had become quite smooth.

A Monkey's Intelligence.

In the Nature Notes, Robert Morley tells the following story: A friend of Mr. Morley's, a native of India, was sitting in his garden, when a loud chattering announced the arrival of a large party of monkeys, who forthwith proceeded to make a meal off his fruits. Fearing the loss of his entire crop, he fetched his fowling-piece, and, to frighten them away, fired it off, as he thought, over the heads of the chattering crew. They all fled away, but, he noticed, left behind upon a bough what looked like one fallen asleep, with its head resting upon its arms. As it did not move, he sent a servant up the tree, who found that it was quite dead, having been shot through the heart. He had it fetched down and buried beneath the tree; and on the morrow he saw sitting upon the little mound the mate of the dead monkey. It remained there for several days bewailing its loss.

Intelligent Fishes.

By far the most intelligent denizens of the deep are the dolphin and the porpoise, and long and careful examination of two of the latter, which formerly inhabited the large tank at the Brighton (Eng.) aquarium, proved them to be not only tamable and even sociable as regards man, but also to possess social likes and dislikes, and great exclusiveness with regard to other inhabitants of what they considered their particular domain.
